Tres Martin,

I wanted to let you know how much I enjoyed your class. I have been driving high performance boats for years and was not sure how much I would learn, but after taking your class I have realized that there is a lot more going on under my boat than I first thought. I really like the fact that you explain why certain boats respond the way they do. Instead of just telling you to do this or not to do that, you make sure each student understands why to do or not to do certain things. I think this understanding will be very valuable when I take my boat out and apply your techniques. I plan on spending enough seat time in my boat to make these techniques instinctive. I believe your school will make me a better and safer driver. Being in a boat and watching you perform the same techniques in real time helped to feel how the boat should respond and I can't wait to get out and try them myself. It was also valuable that you went over safety and docking techniques. I think a lot of people are lax in these areas, your students won't be.

If anyone is considering your class and has any doubts about what they will get out of it, feel free to give them my name and phone number and I will share with them how important I think the school is. - for beginners and experienced drivers. -

Thanks again,

Chris Wall
